That's life!
Respect the house rules

What are we going to do?

1. JELENET

Alice a konyhában van. Belép Peter egy csomaggal a kezében.

Peter: Good morning. Alice, is Anne at home? I've just met the postman and this package is for her.

Alice: No, she's not in now. My! What a large package!

Peter: Please, be careful! I think it contains fragile objects.

Alice: Hey Peter... Do you know if it contains a set of porcelain plates that she won with the "Sweet" biscuits bonus points?

Peter: Well, I think so... At least, that's where the package comes from. Alright Alice, I have to go now. See you later.

Alice: Anne will be so happy! She's been waiting for it for a long time. Bye!

(Alice, egyedül maradva, nem bír ellenállni a kísértésnek és kinyitja a csomagot. Kivesz egy tálat a dobozból és Anne-t hívja.)

Alice: Hello Anne, this is Alice. I've got great news for you: your set of Chinese porcelain has arrived! They're beautiful. No, I opened it. I'm sorry Anne, I just couldn't resist... (a tányér hirtelen kicsúszik a kezéből és összetörik) Oh no! Anne... I'm so sorry... It broke! Okay, okay. I'm not allowed to touch any more plates. You're absolutely right, I'm so sorry! Bye.

(Leteszi a telefont. Ekkor megérkezik Jack, aki egy újságot olvas és szórakozottan nekimegy a csomagnak.)

Alice: Jack be careful, don't touch anything! This packet contains Anne's set of Chinese porcelain. I hope you didn't break anything! I already broke a plate, and guess who heard me breaking it? Anne!

Jack: Oh my... I didn't notice anything!

Alice: You should look where you are going...

Jack: I'm... I'm sorry. What are we going to do?

Alice: Well, let's get ready for Anne to lose her temper... Who knows, maybe she'll forgive us. She can't get that angry! They're just plates...

Jack: Remember, we can't cook... If Anne gets angry, we'll have to learn to cook!

Alice: That's true... I've got an idea: let's go get something from the local take-out place. Then we can pretend that we cooked dinner. She might be happy and forget about those plates...

Jack: That's a great idea! Let's get going!

Rules are important, but it's also important to laugh a little!

2. JELENET

Sharon: Hi, Anne! What's that you're holding?

Anne: Hello everyone! Listen... We need some rules in this house! Living together means obeying some rules! I've written this list of house rules that every person who spends time in this house must follow! No one is allowed to leave this living room until they read and memorise these rules!

Jack: Bad day, huh?

Alice: She's right, Jack! Anyway, Anne dear, what about these... house rules?

Anne: First of all, don't call me "Anne dear"... And now listen: Rule No. 1: you must never, and I stress "never", open my post. Rule No. 2: from now on, clean the house at least once a week. Rule No. 3: we have to take turns washing up. Rule No. 4 ...

Jack: Okay, okay Anne... We understand! You must be angry.

Anne: Yes, Jack! I am very, very angry! I was really looking forward to getting the set of Chinese plates... I saved bonus points for a year... Eating the same, stupid biscuits... which, for your information, I can't stand anymore! I kept eating and buying them in order to get the set of Chinese porcelain... All for nothing!

Alice: Oh, please forgive us, Anne. Just tell us where to go, and we'll buy you a new set!

Anne: That's not possible! They were handcrafted in Shanghai! And they cost a fortune!

Alice: Okay, we'll do our best to make it up... Somehow... Now, sit down Anne. You must be exhausted. Jack and I made dinner for you! You don't have to do anything... We thought of everything!

Anne: Really, you made dinner for me?

Jack: Yes, Anne... It was the least we could do...

Anne: Okay, I'll forgive you this time... But, I warn both of you that I want more discipline in this house. You can't do what you want all the time... We need some rules!

(Jack az égre emeli a szemét, miközben unott arcot vág.)

Anne (Jack-nek): And don't roll your eyes when I'm speaking to you!

Jack: Okay, Anne! You're right... Rules are important, but it's also important to laugh a little!

Anne (szarkasztikusán): Oh, ha ha ha.

That's life! Artistic licence

Don't play "mom", Anne!

1. JELENET

Este van. Anne és Sharon televíziót néznek. Belép Jack.

Jack: Hi everybody, what's on TV?

Sharon: Shh... Jack! Just a minute... It's almost finished.

Jack (Anne kikapcsolja a TV-t): So what were you watching that was so engrossing?

Sharon: It was an extremely interesting documentary about Picasso's life. There were lots of details about some of his stranger habits. Did you know that Picasso preferred painting women with four eyes?

Jack: No, I had no idea...

Anne: And that he had lots of different types of dogs? He used to give only dogs to his friends, strange, no?

Sharon: And that he liked eating Italian cake at Christmas?

Jack: Well, I also go crazy for Italian cake at Christmas, and my name isn't Picasso! By the way, where is our resident artist, Alice?

Anne: She left early this morning. She said that she had something important to do, but she wouldn't tell me what... But she did say it was none of my business. You know how she is...

Sharon: That's strange... She usually leaves late...

Anne: As a matter of fact, she was very serious this morning. She told me she had a headache, but I didn't believe her. Oh look, it's getting late, I'm starting to get worried.

Jack: Don't play "mom", Anne! Alice is a big girl now...

Anne: I know... I know... It's just that she didn't tell me she would be late... In fact she asked me if I would be late today...

Sharon: Just a moment... A few days ago Alice told me that she wanted to enter a painting contest. She said she thought it was her big chance... Maybe that's where she is today.

Anne: Well, you're probably right... But it's almost midnight. I don't think contests last that long.

Jack: Why not? We all know that artists are a little crazy! Picasso was a perfect example!

Sharon: That's true! And you know something about being crazy, Jack, don't you?

2. JELENET

Reggel van. Anne és Jack a konyhában vannak. Belép Alice. Nagyon rosszkedvű.

Anne: Good morning, Alice. Where were you last night? We were getting worried...

Alice: Good morning. I'd prefer not to talk about it...

Jack: Why, what happened?

Alice: I took part in a young artists competition... I thought it would be the perfect occasion for me to show my talent!

Anne: So, how did it go? You made a great impression, didn't you?

Alice: Well, no! It went badly. They said that I wasn't cut out to be an artist. But the jury was made up of incompetents... Maybe no one appreciates my talent!

Jack: Come on Alice, don't take it so badly. You know you're a genius, right? And that's all that matters!

Alice: Yes, just like Van Gogh... who, by the way, only became famous after he had died. Maybe that's my destiny...

Anne: Maybe, you're exaggerating just a little bit... I mean, Van Gogh?! You don't really think you're in the same league, do you?

Alice: And why not?! No one appreciates my talent either! Anyway, I want your opinions! Wait just a moment while I get something...

(Kimegy a konyhából. Jack és Anne nevetésben törnek ki. Alice nem sokkal később a kezében egy képpel tér vissza.)

Alice: Here you go! This is the painting I took along yesterday. What do you think? Isn't it beautiful? (A kép érthetetlen, Anne és Jack egy kicsit megdöbbenve nézik.)

Anne: It's... It's interesting! It's a very... a very unique painting, yes... Unique is the right word.

Jack: Alice... You know I don't really understand art, don't you? What does it represent?

Alice: That's the same question they asked me yesterday. I can't believe that! It's so clear! It's a painting of a man and a woman walking hand in hand!

Anne: Oh... I see...

Jack: Well, the truth is, it's a bit difficult to see... I mean, at first glance it looks like a whole lot of mixed-up colours...

Alice: Come on Jack, you just don't understand abstract art, do you? Well, now I understand that neither of you has any appreciation of fine art! (Haragosan kimegy a konyhából.)

Anne: Oh, artists! Never tell an artist what you really think!

Weather: Climate change

Eric: Good morning, welcome to this week's edition of "Climate Change". In the studio with me is our weather expert Susan Ferley.

Susan: Good morning Eric.

Eric: Well Susan, there's a lot of talk these days about climate change. Could you explain exactly what is happening?

Susan: Of course. You know the first thing to stress is that the earth's climate is always changing. In the past this happened due to natural causes. I mean, the atmosphere and the earth's climate changed naturally. Now things are different. Scientists believe that climate change today is a result of man's activities, our activities.

Eric: And why are scientists so worried about this climate change?

Susan: Well, before I answer that question I'd like to talk a little about what we call the "Greenhouse effect".

Eric: Certainly, scientists often talk about the "Greenhouse effect". What is this exactly?

Susan: The "Greenhouse effect" is very important for the world's weather. Greenhouse gases help to capture the energy we receive from the sun. They keep the earth warm. Without these gases the world would be a colder place and our lives would be very different.

Eric: Well, if the "Greenhouse effect" is so useful for the earth, why do scientists talk about it nowadays as if it's something dangerous?

Susan: It's the extra greenhouse gases that are dangerous! Our way of life, cars, factories, central heating, is producing too much of these greenhouse gases. These gases are trapping more and more of the sun's energy and the world's becoming warmer.

Eric: Is carbon dioxide one of these gases?

Susan: Yes, carbon dioxide, CO₂, is one of the main greenhouse gases. Carbon dioxide is produced when we burn coal and natural gas. The problem is that over the years the concentration of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere has increased enormously.

Eric: So to stop global warming we need to use less coal and natural gases?

Susan: Exactly! But not only that! We also need to plant more trees and we must stop destroying our forests because they take carbon dioxide out of the air.

Eric: Is there anything else we can do?

Susan: Well, governments around the world need to encourage the use of renewable energy sources. Solar panels can use the sun's energy, wind turbines can generate electricity from the wind and hydroelectric power plants can use water to generate electricity.

Eric: Renewable energy is becoming popular today, isn't it?

Susan: Yes, it is, but there's still a long way to go.

Eric: Ok, Susan one last question, what are the consequences of climate change?

Susan: Well, higher average temperatures around the world. You know even a small change in temperature, even a one degree increase, can cause the sea level to rise as the polar ice caps melt, in fact this is already happening. Other consequences? More rainfall in some parts of the world and less in others, more extreme weather conditions, stronger hurricanes and typhoons.

Eric: So this is definitely a serious issue! We mustn't underestimate the importance of climate change and we need to use more renewable energy. Well, thanks to Susan for your clear explanation of the problems.

Susan: Thank you. Goodbye.

Eric: And goodbye and see you again next week for another edition of "Climate Change".

Kitchen:

Planning meals

Nancy: Welcome to "Cooking Today"! All homemakers will be thrilled to know that we are back with Lisa French! Thank you for inviting us into your lovely home once again, Lisa.

Lisa: I'm glad to have you.

Nancy: Now, Lisa, Leslie Forbes, from New Castle on Tyne, is desperate. Her family's always complaining about her cooking. They say it's really... yucky! And they sneak out to get junk food! How can she make her meals more appetizing?

Lisa: Well, actually, it's just a matter of good meal planning.

Nancy: That sounds rather serious!

Lisa: Yes, it is, but it can also be a fun challenge! This means preparing food that's healthy as well as appealing and involves the senses, such as smell, taste, and sight.

Nancy: Is that why they say: "Your eyes are bigger than your stomach"?

Lisa: Not exactly.

Nancy: Now, getting serious, when you say "healthy", you're referring to nutrition, aren't you?

Lisa: Yes, of course. Nutrition is the key to good health! As a matter of fact, nutritionists agree that a varied diet is fundamental for physical and mental well-being.

Nancy: What are the correct guidelines to good nutrition?

Lisa: As you can see, I have an example of a Food Pyramid here. These six main food groups contain the nutrients essential to a well-balanced diet.

Nancy: Why a pyramid?

Lisa: Because it enables us to understand the correct number of servings per day.

Nancy: Can you give an example?

Lisa: Certainly. You see, the largest group includes bread, cereals, rice and pasta. Then, going up the pyramid, you find fruits and vegetables, then meats and dairy products.

Nancy: What's at the top?

Lisa: You mean here? These are fats, oils and sweets which, although essential to the diet, must be eaten in moderate quantities.

Nancy: Now, going back to Leslie's request, how can she make tasty meals for her family?

Lisa: If she hasn't much time for shopping, she can make a weekly plan. Besides a correct diet, she must consider the likes and dislikes of her family.

Nancy: You're telling me! In my family my son hated beans, and my daughter was allergic to milk!

Lisa: That's a common problem. The thing is to compensate with food belonging to the same group or supplements.

Nancy: Really? That's good to know.

Lisa: A little secret, if you truly enjoy preparing meals, then your family will probably enjoy eating them.

Nancy: How can I get my family to enjoy my cooking?

Lisa: Just be creative! Think like an artist, play with the colours, shapes and textures of food.

Nancy: Oh my gosh! How time flies! We've got to wind this up! Lisa, thank you for inviting us into your home again, it's been a pleasure being here.

Lisa: Thank you for coming.
